1. Summary

This document constitutes the first deliverable for Work Package 5 Communication, Exploitation and Dissemination. It is part of the integral Communication, Exploitation and Dissemination strategy for CHAMELEONS designed to communicate progress and outputs in a manner which transfers across disciplines and sectors.

The main aim of this deliverable is to plan and list high-level scientific events for partners and students joining the CHAMELEONS project. This, we anticipate, will result in a powerful impact of the project in the field of education in the EU.

This deliverable lists events for both students and CHAMELEONS partners. Events include, conferences, congresses, workshops, and webinars. Events that do not fit into those categories are listed as, 'Other'. These Events are further divided by topic: entrepreneurship and business conferences, educational conferences, and connected health conferences.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic many events that were planned for Spring, Summer and Autumn 2020 have been cancelled or postponed, and many future events are awaiting a final decision by the organisers as to whether they will be cancelled, postponed or moved online.

The tables contained in this document will be updated for the students and partners as new events are confirmed.

2. Introduction

The Events deliverable is the first deliverable in Work Package 5, Communication, Exploitation and Dissemination.

The focus of this deliverable is two-fold: 1) It provides a list of events for PhD students to attend and learn skills which are not provided in their specific PhD programmes, and 2) It lists events for CHAMELEONS partners to attend and present the project results and advances.

Given the current global COVID-19 pandemic, many events are being cancelled for this year, and due to uncertainties, many of next year's events have yet to be confirmed. This creates challenges in identifying suitable events. However, the list will be updated as new events are identified and confirmed and this list will be updated and disseminated to the project partners regularly through the CHAMELEONS digital repository. The partners can then share the events with the students within their network.

This deliverable is structured in the following way: Events for the students which are further divided into: conferences, congresses, workshops, webinars, others and the events for the CHAMELEONS partners.

A preliminary list of events has been identified for both project partners and students to attend. These events can be seen as learning experiences and an opportunity for partners within CHAMELEONS to present the project and its results. The tables contained in this document will be updated as new events are confirmed.

The advances and results of CHAMELEONS will be presented at EU Events, International Trade Fairs and opportunities relating to doctoral education. The partners are involved in deciding which events they will attend and preparing the relevant presentations.

The students within the CHAMELEONS network will be encouraged to attend the events as part of their doctoral training.

3. Events for Students

The CHAMELEONS project aims to empower PhD students with fundamental, advanced and transversal skills to enable them to communicate across multiple disciplines and sectors thereby having a real societal impact .

Therefore, students need to attend different types of events (conferences, congresses, workshops, etc.) in the following thematic areas: connected health, business, industry, education research and entrepreneurship.

Attending these events will contribute to addressing the key business, innovation, research, entrepreneurship and emotional skills required by today's PhD and Postdoctoral graduates, to meet the demands of a more knowledge and skill-intensive job and labour market.

3.2 Conferences

In this section a list of online and in person educational conferences are presented (Tables 1-4). These conferences present opportunities where CHAMELEONS students can develop an understanding of the latest digital education trends. This will enable them to address the challenges of the digital education era. This will also enable them to be able discuss, share experiences and research outcomes in international, interdisciplinary and intersectoral environments.

The field of healthcare is rapidly advancing, citizens are increasingly taking responsibility for their own health through technological devices. Students participation in these Connected Health conferences will allow them to learn about the latest developments and to better understand the current and future healthcare needs.

Finally, the students will be offered the opportunity of attending conferences related to entrepreneurship and business. These will promote their business skills, knowledge and entrepreneurial learning, and will offer them an opportunity to network with other students, researchers and practitioners in the field.

5. Conclusions

The participation of partners in high-level scientific conferences in the education field and at other important events organised by stakeholders and policy makers, will enable this project to have high visibility in Europe and beyond. It will attract and engage the interest of the sector's leading stakeholders. Furthermore, it will contribute to building and consolidating the identity of the project.

On the other hand, the participation of students at events in EU across various disciplines, will allow them to acquire new knowledge and skills, be informed about the latest trends and developments, as well as network other students, researchers, practitioners and academics worldwide.

The dissemination of the project through attendance at key events, in combination with disseminating on the official website, social media and through other channels, will allow us to deploy an integrated Communication and Dissemination Strategy for CHAMELEONS which will ensure the project has a high impact across a variety of stakeholders.
